Zone Plan
Again Mon.

PAHOKEE — Continuation of public discussion of revision of the local zoning ordinance is set for Monday 8 p.m., City Council ruled after the first public hearing during its regular meeting Monday.

Monday, Frederick H. Bair, Jr., executive secretary of the Florida Planning and Zoning Association and expert referee for preliminary studies by the City of Pahokee, will meet with the council and the members of the Zoning Board.

Council's decision was reached after City Building Inspector Frank Thompson recommended that a minimum square footage provision be made for houses to be built under the revised ordinance in certain residential areas. Mayor Lewis Friend felt that there would be little opposition to such a requirement.

1000 Sq. Ft.

Question arose as to whether a minimum of 1,000 square feet in a house would be satisfactory.

Councilman James Barry Wink, Jr., suggested caution in such a minimum and voiced the fear that it would tend to drive the retired group of people out of the area. Councilman Loren Meredith reaffirmed that it is not the idea of a zoning ordinance to impede progress or to discourage building, but rather to protect the investment of the builder. He moved the Monday adjournment and it was unanimously accepted by the council.

After the Council went into regular session, Councilman Robert Simmons moved that within two months the Water Works funds should show a sufficient balance to enable the department to consider purchase of two lots adjacent to the water plant.

Copies To Be Made
City Attorney Ralph O. Johnson recommended that the city council have several hundred copies of the proposed zoning ordinance printed. Councilman Louis Mims discussed the proposal and it was pointed out that numerous requests for the zoning ordinance had been received.

CAMERA REPORT: Telephone Strike Hits Glades

Southern Bell

OUTSIDE Glades Southern Bell Telephone office in Belle Glade as strike started Monday, was a union picket line. L-r above are Lucile Janney and Raynola Golin.

VIEWPOINTS OF DISPUTANTS

Summing up the major points of difference causing the strike which was started Monday by the Communications Workers of America against the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, local company and union spokesmen lined them up as follows:

THE COMPANY VIEWPOINT

Inclusion of a "no-strike" clause in the contract being negotiated between Southern Bell and the Communication Workers of America is the principal Company demand, telephone officials say.

Although the Union feels that the Company would have a blue-ribbon over it if there was a "no-strike" clause, the Company points out that 89% of the labor-management contracts negotiated in industry in America contain such a clause.

Called by the Company "the clause to assure continuous service to the public," the no-work-stoppage clause would permit both the Company and the Union to adjust grievances without lockouts or work stoppages, it is said.

Since mid-1951 there have been, according to company officials, 105 "quickie" strikes which have in some way interrupted service to the public. Efforts by the Union, who claimed responsibility for the "quickie" strikes, to educate, counsel and advise their membership have not been successful, the company says. The Company view is that it would require mutual grievances to be settled under procedures set forth in the contract.

Company assurance that there was no intention on its part to abolish the Union's fundamental right to strike was not accepted by the Union, company officials say. The Company view is that it would require mutual grievances to be settled under procedures set forth in the contract.

NEW VETERINARY WITH KIDDER

BELLE GLADE — In June the Everglades Animal Hospital expects to have a second full-time veterinarian added to its staff.

A present, Bill Carter is working with Dr. Clarence Kidder as an interne prior to receiving his degree from Auburn in June. Carter, who with his wife and two children are living at Chosen, is from Baldwin County, Ala.

Carter expects to have a mixed practice, handling both large and small animals. New office hours at the hospital have been set. Carter plans to be in during some daytime hours and will assist Dr. Kidder generally, he said.

THE UNION VIEWPOINT

Glades telephone employees indicate that their main concern in the Southern Bell Telephone Company - Communications Workers of America strike is the disparity in wages paid them locally and wages paid employees with similar jobs in West Palm Beach.

One spokesman, discussing the wage differential said that he felt and fellow union members agreed, that the same pay scale should prevail throughout the country. Top pay for Belle Glade operators was said to be $49.50 weekly as opposed to $57 in West Palm Beach. It was said that in the plant department, repairmen receive $79.50 in Belle Glade, $77 in Pahokee, and $88 in West Palm Beach.

The Union rank and file is opposed to the "no-strike" clause sought by the Company in the contract now under negotiation.

Local Union members feel the classifications of company officials are arbitrary and do not reflect a true picture of traffic handled in the Glades.

It was reported that there are 8,000 CWA members in Florida and 50,000 in the entire southern states comprising District 3 of the CWA. Locally there are 33 Union members, and all but one of this number are on strike.

LAUNDRY SET FOR EMH

PAHOKEE — A laundry, which will serve Everglades Memorial Hospital an estimated $2,000 a year, is being installed at the hospital and laundry will begin operation next week. Administrator Jesse Reel said Wednesday.

The two-room laundry, containing some $2,100 worth of equipment, will replace a linen service which up to now has furnished the hospital with its laundry supply. Reel said.

The hospital board recently authorized an appropriation of $3,750 for installation of the laundry and purchase of linens. Needing only one employee, the laundry has a double washer with rinsers and extractor; a 56-inch ironer for flat work linens, with a tumbler for fluffy-drying of towels, baby blankets and other hospital linens which are not ironed.

The laundry has been established in a room formerly used as a storeroom, and a room across the hall which heretofore had been the used linens storeroom.

'Fire' Work
In So. Bay

SOUTH BAY — Police Patrolman Lester Rhudy was fired this week after City Commissioners refused to modify his work orders which prohibit him from going into City Hall or business places while on duty.

Rhudy appeared before the commission and pointed out that the inflexibility of written orders posted by Chief of Police R. C. White and countersigned by Police Commissioner F. W. Kelley, Jr. curtailed his carrying out his duties.

Chief White, asked by OBSERVER why a police employee of the city was not allowed to go into the municipal building or into places of business, said that officers were not spending enough time on the road and that it was necessary to post orders such as these to keep them "outside" on duty.

Patrolman Rhudy was hired only three months ago after the departure of Frank Cline. He asked for his work orders modification at Monday's commission meeting.

The orders outlined his hours on duty prohibited his return to his home except for luncheon, forbade him to go into city hall, business places or while on duty and stipulated hours for school patrol duty.

White and Kelley told the commission and Rhudy that the orders were to stand as posted. Commissioner I. P. Roberts questioned the propriety of Rhudy bringing his grievance to the commission. After Rhudy enumerated the orders, Kelley said that if he did not agree with the orders he could resign. Rhudy said he wouldn't resign and that the commission should fire him, but he still wanted to work.

Chief Bender, in an interview, praised the efforts of John Pickett in drawing plans within the budget set by the last Legislature to make the building possible. PRODUCERS LOSE ANIMALS INJURED GOING TO MARKET

By SPUDS JOHNSON
Ag. News Service

Livestock producers could increase their profits by cutting injuries to animals en route to market.

This observation is borne out by an analysis by the Farmer Cooperative Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture of loss and damage to livestock delivered by a number of cooperative shipping associations to three markets.

Most producers seek to protect themselves from losses by insuring their animals for the haul from farm to market. But often they do not realize that the cost of this protection, either through regular insurance or, in the case of cooperatives, through contributions to "sinking funds"—is based upon transit loss experience. Faulty practices in handling animals result in unnecessarily high charges for insurance protection.

Producers also lose money, the report indicates, through lower prices at the market. Bruise damage not detected until after slaughter represents a loss to the processor, and buyers avoid discount stock from a producer with a poor record on bruise losses. A producer with such a record may find himself "a last resort" source to be used only when meat supplies cannot be obtained elsewhere.

The report suggests that transit damages and losses could be cut substantially if livestock producers would: (1) avoid excessive handling before shipment, if possible sorting and assembling a day in advance; (2) prevent livestock from over-eating or drinking immediately prior to shipment; (3) load animals carefully and unhurriedly, using good loading equipment and avoiding use of clubs, whips or canes; and (4) choose a trucker with a low record and insist upon careful handling.

The study revealed that the rate of death and crippling for all classes of livestock rose in proportion to the length of haul and losses were almost twice as high in winter as in summer.
